Large Rebel Cavalry Force at Chambersburg Great Excitement at Harrisburg.

HARRISBURG, Pa., July 30 .- A large force of rebel cavalry entered Chambersburg at three o'clock this morning.

Gen. Couch is at Carlisle. The Governor has arrived in the city. The citizens here are arming.

FROM GRANT'S ARMY.

The Movement of the Second Corps on the North Side of James River-Six Guns Captured from the Rebels, Instead of Four-Our Forces Moving on Successful-ly-Successful Shelling of Petersburg-Rebel Dread of Grant's Mining Opera-

The mallboat Charlotte Vanderbilt arrived here this morning from City Point. She brings no definite news of the further operations of the 2d corps since the fighting at Malvern Hill: but it was reported at City Point that our forces were moving on successfully, and had advanced some distance up river above the point of the late fighting.

The guns (four 20-pounders and two 12pounders) and the prisoners captured near Malvern Hill have arrived at City Point, The prisoners number between five and six hundred. The parrot guns (20-pounders) were captured at Drury's Bluff, from the 18th corps, in May last, and the 12-pounders were taken by the rebels at the second Bull Run fight. The rebels have inscribed upon these pieces the battles they have been in since they were captured from us, and judging from the number of inscriptions they must have seen exten-

On Thursday afternoon, in front of Petersburg, the rebels opened upon our forces from their batteries. The batteries on our side replied, and soon silenced those of the enemy.

Our mortars also opened upon Petersburg, and continued to throw shells into the town until a late hour in the night. Several houses were set on fire, which must have caused no little consternation in Petersburg, as the alarm bells could be heard ringing in animated style for a considerable time.

The rebels are in momentary anticipation of a "hyst" from Grant's mines, which they believe are designed to make a breach in their line of fortifications about Petersburg. As a precautionary measure they are said to be busily engaged constructing a strong line of defences within those threatened as they think by Grant's mining operations.

IMPORTANT FROM GEN'L GRANT.

A New Movement Initiated-A Battle on the James-Hancock again in the Field-Another Victory of the 2d Corps-Fight Near Deep Bottom-Capture of Four 20. Pound Parrotts-Storming a Rebel Battery-100 Rebels taken Prisoners-Gunboat Mendota Shells the Enemy-Our loss less than One Hundred.

[Correspondence Philadelphia Inquirer.] BERMUDA HUNDRED, July 28 .- The old Second Corps has again had an encounter with the enemy on new ground, and, as usual, has come out ahead. Four very fine twentypounder Parrott guns, with well filled caissons, and a number of prisoners, stated at about one hundred, constitute the trophies won by them, and form not a bad day's work. The total loss of the corps during the day, (yester day,) will probably not exceed one hundred.

It will be recollected that soon after the arrival of the Army of the Potomac before Petersburg, Gen. Foster's brigade of the 10th Corps was thrown across the river at Deep Bottom, which is about three miles south of New Market, and distant from Richmond in a direct line, about ten miles. The brigade of Gen'i Foster's has since then held its ground on the banks of the James, forming the extreme right of our extended line of battle and connected with the other portion of Gen. Butler's forces by a pontoon bridge. This bridge spans the river just above the mouth of Four mile Creek Some days ago another bridge was constructed below the mouth of the creek just named and about half a mile below the other bridge, and a brigade of the 19th corps has since held a position to the right of Gen. Foster, and with its left on Four Mile Creek, having in the interim

The construction of this second bridge, and the occupation of the opposite bank of the river, were the preliminaries of a more important movement, the one which has now taken place. It would be contraband, as yet, to state the ultimate design of the movement, and I shall only narrate what has already occurred, viz that the 2d Corps, followed by a heavy force of cavalry, under Sheridan, crossed the James river, at the lower pontoon bridge, yesterday morning, and that the cavalry passed to the right of the infantry, and started out towards the New Market road, What the ulterior course and destination of the latter is, I leave the sagacious reader to conjecture.

Prior to this movement the 2d corps had been lying in reserve for nearly two weeks. On the morning of Tuesday, the 26th, the order was given to be ready to march at half past four p m. of the same day, and the head of the column started promptly at the hour designated. The cavalry, which was some miles further to the left and rear, commenced moving at about the same time. Every precaution was taken to conceal from the enemy all indications of the movement, and the latter was to be executed with all possible rapidity. For the former object the condition of the road was highly favorable, recent rain having entirely laid the dust, which otherwise would inevitably have to rayed the presence of a moving column. The men marched with a rapidity that was surprising, and soon after dark the column seached the pontoon bridge at Point of Rocks. and commenced crossing to the north side of the Appomattox. The cavalry crossed about three fourths of a mile lower down. From the Appomattox the column struck across by the nearest route for the bridge at Deep Bottom, which the infantry reached by 3 a. m. yesterday morning, and immediately commenced crossing to the east bank of the James. Gen. Barlow's division took the lead Next came the third division, Gen. Mott's and Gen. Gibbons' division last. The cavalry began to cross an hour or two after the infantry had got over. The latter deployed into line of battle immediately after crossing the river, the first division taking the centre, with the third and second on the right and left respectively. Two batteries were also brought over and posted near the edge of the timber which skirts the river—Brown's battery, (B,) of the 1st Rhode Island, and Sleeper's 10th Massachusetts battery. Each division pushed forward its skirmishers soon after daylight, and reconneitered the position of the enemy. The portion of the 19th corps which had been picketing there, being relieved, retired to the rear. The rebel line of battle extended along a road somewhat over a mile from the river, where they had improvised a pretty good breastwork of rails and earth, while at some points the road itself was so sunken as to af-lord a breastwork without much labor in its construction. Near the point where the road is entered by a road running directly out from the pontoon bridge, the rebels had a battery of four gans, and a section of a battery further to About half past seven o'clock our skirmishers advanced and drove back those of the enemy, and this opened the fight. The rebei batteries just mentioned opened fire, and were replied to by Brown and Sleeper, and the gun-boat Mendota. The latter fired one-hundred pound shells from rifled parrotts, which appeared to strike great terror in the Johnnies, and aided much in silencing their butteries

After the latter object was accomplished the skirmish line of Barlow's division, consisting of the 183d Pennsylvania, 28th Massachusetts ard 5th New Hampshire regiments, of Gen. Miles' brigade, under command of Col. Lynch, of the 183d Pennsylvania, advanced on the four-gun battery on their front. Col. Lynch left a few men to skirmish in front, while with the rest of his line, divided into two parties, he moved by the flank, and coming in on each side of the battery, effected its capture, along with the adjacent portion of the rebel picket

This occurred at about 8% a.m., or within less than an hour after the fighting commenced. The enemy now relinquished their entrenchments along the whole line, and fell back to a ridge about two miles to the rear, where they commenced entrenching.

Our want of familiarity with the country rendered it necessary to advance cautionaly, or it might have been practicable to dislodge them from that position also. At dark last night our line of battle had been satisfactorily posted, and some anticipated that an advance would be made during the night, but whether it took place I have no means of knowing.

The rebel troops supporting the captured battery were Kershaw's South Carolina Brigade. The battery itself consists of guns man-ufactured at West Point, and is supposed to be the one captured in the attack on Heckman's Brigade, near Drury's Bluff, some two months

We lost less than a dozen men in the charge on the battery, and our entire loss during the day will hardly exceed one hundred.

THE SHENANDOAH VALLEY.

Important Military Movements-A New Contest for the Valley-No Rebels This Side of the Potomac-Martinsburg in Our Possession-Latest From Harper's

Special Correspondence Baltimore American. HARPER'S FERRY, Friday, July 29 .- There is an invasion going forward here—but it is not an invasion of Maryland. Harper's Ferry is once again, in its varied experience during this war, the scene of active military opera-tions, and the pontoon bridge that floats under the shadow of the railroad viaduct groans and quivers to-day under the tread of armed men, of artillery trains, and of army wagons. This much I may say without imparting any information to the enemy, for by the time this goes into print they will well know that before Maryland can be invaded again, the question is to be decided-"Who shall be master in the Valley of the Shenandoah?' I shall not run the risk of touching on contraband news by any reference to the troops which on our side are to be employed in settling this problem, their numbers, commanders, etc. But I may say that the military authorities have pushed forward their counter movements against the schemes of the rebels with an unusual degree of vigor, sagacity, and secrecy. If the rebel force lingers anywhere near Winchester, a battle is among the probabilities within the next few days. If fought at all, it will be fought under circumstances that ought to, and I believe will, give us success. It will not be a fight in which a portion of our forces are exposed to the whole rebel strength. There will be no whipping us this time by detail. We shall not be obliged to fight against superior numbers of the enemy and also bad manage-ment on our part. If we are whipped, the rebels will have to show a larger force in the Shenandoah Valley than has yet been developed except by rumor; and they will also have to fight for what they get.

Of my own judgment, I am very doubtful whether any serious engagement will occur, unless, indeed, our movements have been sufficiently rapid and secret to take the rebels by We have had abundant experience of the unfruitfulness of a chase of the enemy up the Valley, when they find it expedient to avoid giving battle. There is a race for Staunton or some of the gaps, in which the rebels have the advantage both of start and distance, and are sure to boat us. So, I am inclined to believe, it will be this time. There is one other point to be taken into consideration, and upon it may depend the whole question. The enemy may be sufficiently in need of the crops of the Valley to make it an imperative necessity that they should fight for them. It is undoubtedly the fact that these crops have furnished, to a very considerable extent, the subsistence for the army at Richmond, and that autumn after autumn the rebels have been successful in gathering them. This year they have a double inducement to contend for the prize. The cutting off of supplies from other sources has increased their necessities, whilst the Valley, always a rich and teeming granary, this year has augmented its productiveness. Therefore it may be a point of necessity for the enemy to fight for the food which is to sustain his principal army this fall and winter. Evidently it is the determination of our military authorities that they shall not gather in these crops without a contest: and therefore, as I said in the beginning of this letter, the question as to who is to be master in the Valley is once more to be tested. It is not to be disguised that the troops in this department-I mean those permanently stationed in it-are not in the best condition. Indeed, in view of the frequent change of commanders, this must be expected as a legitimate result, and it has been increased by loose discipline and a system of almost unchecked burning and plundering wherever they marched that would demoralize the best soldiery in the world. But these things are likely to be mended now.

There is nothing very important from up the river this morning. The rebels withdrew their pickets from the river opposite Williamsport, on Wednesday night, and yesterday General Kelly reoccupied Martinsburg. Telegraphic communication with that point has not been re-established, nor has any train yet ventured up, as the condition of the road and the bridge at Opequan creek is not known. The bridge over Back creek, beyond Martinsburg, is reported to have be destroyed. The train crossed the bridge into the Ferry to-day for the first time since the last rebel occupation. The general belief of officers engaged in the recent fight is that Colonel Mulligan was killed. He is known to have been very severely wounded, and was left on the field. is in progress to learn hie fate and obtain his remains if dead.

FINANCIAL.-The New York Commercial Ad-

ertiser of yesterday evening says: The stock market was very active this mornng, but not on the whole so strong as yesterday, there being a slight reaction from the large advance of the last three days. Outside buyers are being drawn into Wall street again, and orders are much freer than at any time since the panic of April.

Governments are still quite strong, and have made a further rise, more than covering the slight decline at yesterday's afternoon board. Compared with the closing sales of yesterday, Coupon Sixes of 18c1 advanced %; Five-twenty registered, %; Five-twenty Coupons, %; and One-year Certificates, %. The money market is not so easy as yesterday. There is, however, a sufficient supply to meet all regular wants to support liberally the increased activity in stocks. There is less disposition than yesterday to make exceptional loans at 6 per cent—the general rate being 7 per cent. The commission brokers are liberally supplied with money. There is not much commercial paper offering, the rate for which rather favors the sellers. The best notes are taken at 7a10 per cent. Gold opened at 251, and at 11 a. m. advanced

The report of Gen. Grant having successfully surprised the rebels had a depressing effect, putting down the price to 250%. There is some buying to cover "shorts," but very little regular demand.

The Express says: The money market continues quite active, in consequence of the increased speculative feelng at the Stock Exchange, but the demand is treely met by lenders, and capital is plenty at

The railway share market opened buoyantly on the street this morning, and there was a further rise in prices. At the first beards lower rates generally prevailed, under a disposition to realize and the report that Fort Darling was captured. There was a good demand for stocks generally at the decline, and after the call the market was steady. The orders to buy stocks from the outside public are steadily on the rise, especially by telegraph from parties out of Governments were strong and generally better, with a continued active demand, in part for foreign account.

If It is reported that among the heaviest individual orders for United States Five-Twenty bonds recently executed in the London Mar-ket, and pointedly referred to by the London Times and Herald, was one from the O'Donohue, an Irish Representative in the Imperial Parliament, whom Rev. Henry Ward Beecher, on his return from England, expressly mentioned as one of our staunchest friends in the British Islands.

THE REPORTED INVASION OF PENNSYL VANIA.

The public, accustomed to Harrisburg panic dispatches, will of course receive those we publish to-day with due allowance for the singular wondermongering gullibility the telegraphic writers in that quarter have manifested whenever a visit from rebels in arms is apprehended there. We do not believe that any considerable body of rebel cavalry, even, have entered Pennsylvania; nor do we apprehend that any considerable rebel force can do so and return south of the Potomac, except as exchanged prisoners. Last night a dispatch reached Baltimore positively asserting the appearance of a large rebel force between Boonesboro' and Hagerstown. This forenoon it turns out the force in question was a body of our own troops on the march in that vicinity. We mention this fact as an illustration in point.

THE NEW REBEL RAID OR INVASION. There is considerable discussion as to the point where the rebels crossed into Maryland unobserved and penetrated into Pennsylvania as far as Chambersburg without de-

They could not have gone by the way of Hagerstown, and though they might have crossed at Williamsport and pushed on towards Chambersburg by the turnpike road through Greencastle, yet they could not have escaped observation in taking that route. The distance from Williamsport to Chambersburg is about thirty miles.

The probability is that the rebels crossed at Hancock, (the route taken by Bradley Johnson in the late raid,) and from thence to Chambersburg via Mercersburg and Greencastle. At a late hour on Thursday night the cars were running from Hagerstown to Chambersburg, but no passengers were allowed to pass over the road, and the trains were only running for the purpose of carrying freight. Communication between Hagerstown and

Frederick remained uninterrupted yesterday morning, as letters mailed at Hagerstown yesterday 7 o'clock a. m., were received here to-Yesterday morning Hagerstown was still occupied by Averill's and Cole's cavalry, but all the stores were closed and business entirely suspended. No person was allowed to leave Hagerstown in either direction without a pass from the military authorities. No rebels had made their appearance on the Maryland side of river, between Williamsport and Harper's Ferry, but it was reported at Hagerstown that they were concentrating their forces at Shepherdstown.

Gen. Hood's official report of the engagement before Atlanta that occurred on Friday of last day's Star, is but a tissue of misrepresentation and fabrications. It is true, as he says, that the rebels captured perhaps twenty-two pieces of artillery from usearly in the engagement; but he omits to add, what is nevertheless true, viz: that ere the conclusion of the day's fighting Sherman recaptured nearly all of them; and further, that he left on the field of battle (from which he was driven) nearly as many dead alone as we lost throughout the action. He also forgot or omitted to state that his aggregate loss, ere compelled to retreat whence he came, was at least three times as great as Sherman's. He is evidently playing the brag game, to such an extent as to make it plain that nothing short of magnificent l-g on his part will suffice to keep the spirits of the Confederacy up to the point of continuing the struggle in his quarter with any show of spirit.

We hear (and have every confidence in its truth) that our general officers now serving in that vicinity all regard the fall of Atlanta as a foregone conclusion; the only problem in connection with it remaining to be solved beingwhat portion of the rebel army can be taken, or annihilated, ere and when Sherman elects

there is a terrible excitement there on account of the rebel demonstration.

REBEL GUERRILLAS CROSS AT WHITE'S FERRY.

A messenger who arrived here yesterday afternoon from Muddy Branch, which place he left yesterday noon, reports that some of the enemy crossed the Potomac yesterday morning at White's Ferry, which is a few miles below Monocacy, but in what numbers was not known. It is believed that it was nothing more than a brief chicken-stealing expedition LATER.

The following, received since the above was written, refers apparently to the same rebel demonstration :

detachment of rebel cavalry, numbering perhaps fifty or seventy-five men, crossed the Potomac into Maryland at White's Ford, a short distance above Edwards' Ferry. Their intention was doubtless to intercept one of our wagon trains, but after inquiring of the farmers if there were any Federal troops in the vicinity, they returned to the Virginia side of the river without doing any harm further than gobbling up a few horses belonging to private

BOGUS REBEL DESERTERS.

Among a number of prisoners brought to this city to day from Fort Delaware, were two men who were confined there for some time as deserters from the rebel army, but who admitted a day or two ago that they belonged to the Union army. Their names are Edwin Benton, of the 9th N. Y. artillery, and Duncan McPherson, of the 73d N. Y. Benton, it appears, deserted his regiment at Woodbine on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, and went to Gettysburg, where he gave himself up to the Provost Marshal of that place, as a rebel deserter, and was sent to Fort Delaware.

McPherson, in his affidavit states that he deserted his regiment at Fredericksburg, on the 7th of March, and went to Aquia Ureek, from whence he was forwarded to this city as a deserter from the 14th Virginia cavalry, and was committed to the Old Capitol, where he remained until the 15th of June, when he was taken from the prison and transferred to Fort Delaware. Col. Ingraham committed Benton and McPherson to prison, to await the orders of Col. Wells, who will have the prisoner tried

Last night Captain W. A. McCartney, Commanding Post, at Forrest Hall Prison, received information of the whereabouts of a rebel spy information of the whereabouts of a rebel spy, and started in pursuitaccompanied by a gnard. The rebel was overtaken on the Island in the vicinity of 14th street. He was fired at some 3 times before captured. The rebel is now in irons at Forrest Hall, and will be sent to the headquarters for trial.

Moseby Reported in Maryland Endeavoring to Intercept Our Wagon Train-A Canard Doubtless. PHILADELPHIA, July 39 .- A dispatch from

Harper's Ferry to the Bulletin, dated yesterday, says:

It has been ascertained that Col. Mulligan is not dead, but badly wounded and a prisoner in the bands of the enemy. Pretty well authenticated information received here to-night is to the effect that the rebel Moseby, with 500 cavalry, has crossed the Potomac into Maryland at Edward's Ferry, and is endeavoring to intercept our wagon train. But I learn that it is strongly guarded. Other good authorities think the report very doubtful, and that no armed rebels are yet in
